

A diagram illustrating a system boundary. A thick, wavy orange line represents the boundary. Inside the boundary is a light blue rectangular area. Within this blue area, there is a white rectangular box containing the text "40.J". To the left of the blue area, there are several vertical lines of varying heights, some with small squares at their bases, representing energy input or a process. The background is a grid of thin black lines.

40.J